Hon. Warren G. Magnuson
United States Senate
Washington, D. C.

Dear Warren:

I have heard it said a number of times that nothing at all is beyond the range of your accomplishment.

The boy in the center of this picture is my son, who wouldn't wash his hands that night because the president had shaken hands with him and spoken directly to him.

His name is Mark, and one of his life's glorious moments would be complete if his father could get this picture autographed by the president at some future time when it is appropriate, and his father could then give it to him framed for his room.

Do you think that could be done?

Sincerely,

Fred T. Haley

P. S. If this is asking a little bit too much (and maybe it is), then give it to Ed Guthman and let his boss, Robert Kennedy, autograph it for the president. I am sure Ed can have that done for me.

Dear Fred:

As our late President Kennedy enplaned for Florida and thence to Texas, his desk was piled high with photographs to be autographed. The one for Mark was, as I understand, among these.

When the tragedy occurred, Evelyn Lincoln, President Kennedy's personal secretary took both the signed and unsigned pictures with her to new quarters and has been trying to unscramble the situation since then.

Because of the problems she faced in handling the huge volume of correspondence which followed the tragedy, as well as straightening the pending business, I have hesitated to press the matter further.

Some of the pictures are being returned now - some signed and some unsigned - and we'll probably have yours within the next two to three weeks, Fred.

My best regards.

Sincerely,

WARREN G. MAGNUSON, U.S.S.

Dear Senator Magnuson:

In December you wrote me as enclosed (your letter of December 26th). I think probably I ought to take one more shot at this, because if that picture can be located and certainly if it happens to have received the late President's signature, it would be a priceless memento for my son.

It's too bad to bother you with such a detail, but then perhaps Miss Lincoln has her correspondence pretty well sorted out by now.

Sincerely,

Dear Warren:

Your letter of June 15th, the note from Mike Manatos, and the autographed picture of my son Mark with President Kennedy arrived yesterday. I took it home and his mother and I both wept over it.

I am very grateful for your kindness, and under separate cover I am sending a piece of candy which I hope you will pass around to your very nice staff even if you don't each much yourself. I am including a tin also which I would appreciate your passing along to Mr. Manatos.

With kindest regards always.
